Carmel schools' innovative program for troubled students

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE ATTENDING school may be a wonderful adventure for most children, a portion of the youngsters find the educational experience anxiety provoking.

Keeping in mind that an ounce of nurturing is often worth a pound of discipline, the Carmel Unified School District has introduced an innovative program to help troubled students create a healthy self-concept and develop appropriate social skills.

"For many kids school happens naturally," said Marvin Biasotti, director of pupil services, adding that at least 30 percent of school-age children have difficulty in making the adjustment to formal education. "But for some children that process doesn't take place as well as it should they (students) don't feel that school is a healthy and good place to be."

Enter the Primary Intervention Program (PIP), an early detection and intervention system that fosters trust and understanding between students and caring adults.

The sole district in Monterey County utilizing the program, CUSD is working in tandem with the county Department of Mental Health in screening "at risk" students grades K-3 at Tularcitos and River schools.

Statewide, 62 of the 1,400 school districts have come on line with PIP.

Earlier this month CUSD teachers rated students in a variety of categories, including restlessness, attitude, discipline, emotional stability and learning skills.

CUSD officials plan to assist a total of 96 children this year in the $59,000 program, which is funded by an annual $28,000 state grant, CUSD and mental health department. The grant is for three years, after which the state encourages districts to seek alternative funding.

Biasotti is quick to point out that students taking part in PIP are not undergoing counseling or dealing with problems from outside of school.

"A lot of our kids will be coming from very loving and supportive homes," said Biasotti, adding that students must receive parental approval before taking part in the program.

PIP is modeled after the highly successful and carefully researched Primary Health Project (PMHP) in Rochester, N.Y.

PMHP has been in existence for more than 30 years and is nationally recognized as an exemplary model for school mental health services.

Through legislative action, the PMHP model was adopted in California in 1981 in the form of PIP.

I HIS WEEK the program began with students joining paraprofessional aides in the "Kid's Corner." Each student in the program has been assigned a "special friend" whom they will meet with one-on-one for a half hour each week for about three months.

Working with kids at Tularcitos are Susan Augustitus and Heidi Colby: and at River are Joann Langslett and Donna Greenfield.

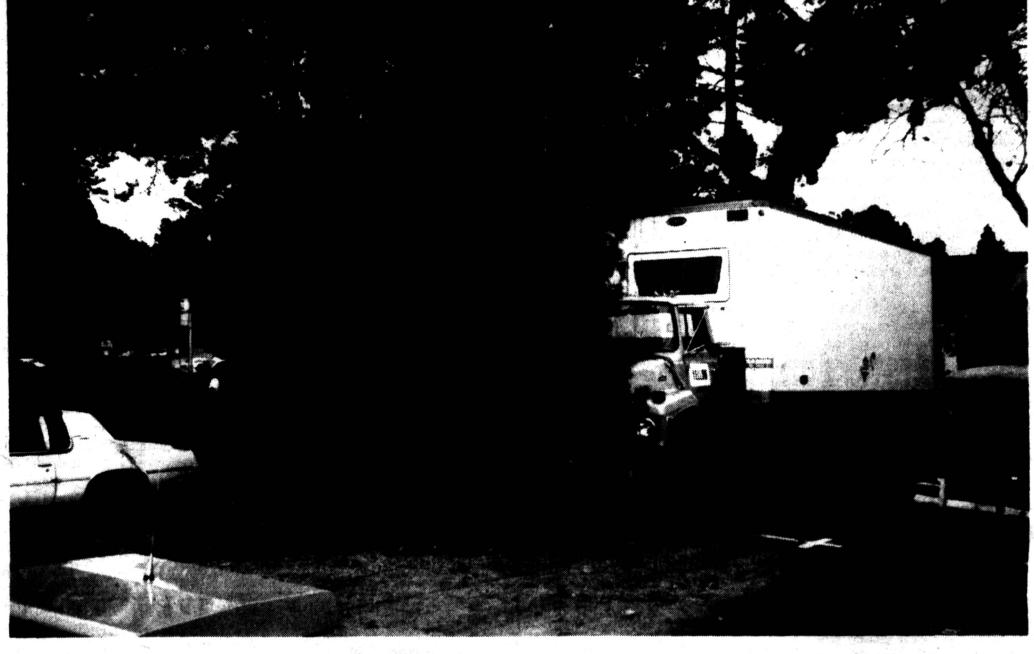

In addition to Biasotti, the program is overseen by school psychologist Stuart McDowell and mental health liaison Julie Ziegler.

It should be noted that aides were selected because of their personalities and life experience, rather than because of numerous degrees.

"We discouraged those formerly trained in mental health," said Biasotti, adding that 39 of the 40 applicants were women. "It's not a therapy session."

Indeed, the 30-minute session falls into a category known as "non-directive play."

In other words, the Kid's Room is a "safe"

"It's a very accepting place," Biasotti said. "The kids can do what they want to do." The only rules: no hurting themself, no hurting the adult and no damage to the play material. Last year at Tularcitos administrators initiated a similar program to give problem students 30 minutes a week of free time with instruction aides.

While a success, limited resources allowed only between six and eight students to take part.

The underlying idea behind the PIP program is that children bask in being in control of their environment during the play session.

Things said during the session are strictly confidential.

"This is a rare opportunity that kids have to spend one-half hour a day of uninterrupted time with an adult," Biasotti said.

After the 12-week session is over, PIP students continue their special friendship when they see their aide in the hallways and on the playground.

Students taking part in PIP are termed "at risk" by school officials. In other words there may be a chance, if left unchecked, that they could be come involved with drugs, truancy and other anti-social behavior.

"It's a real positive prevention program," McDowell said. "Kids can participate before problems ever show up."

Indeed, after self-esteem is boosted, students are able to exert confidence and express feelings.

"We want to make school a rewarding place for every child," Biasotti said.

Officer Steve Rana of the Carmel Police Department said new growth on the branch probably weighed it down to a height of 13 feet 6 inches, which is the normal height of big rig trailers. The street was blocked for an hour after the accident. while a city public works crew swept up the debris. Pepper drove the truck away from the scene after his path was cleared. The truck's hood sustained some damage, but no citations were issued and no other vehicles were involved. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Prognosis for rain is cloudy, but forecasters predict a wet winter

By DAVID LELAND

DESPITE A disappointing amount of November rainfall, several leading weather experts are not putting away their umbrellas just yet.

In fact, the Maryland-based U.S. Weather Service is standing by its 30-day forecast calling for above-normal precipitation through mid-December.

Granted, the probability of that coming to pass is a mere 55 percent, according to Ed Olenic, head forecaster.

Olenic added that next week's anxiously awaited 90-day forecast for December through February will give a more accurate picture for the coming months.

Traditionally, the peninsula receives most of its rainfall during those months, but last year December was bone dry.

Local U.S. Weather Service volunteer observer Bob Renard said he is not surprised that last week's storms bypassed the drought-ravaged peninsula.

"It (rain) just fizzled out," he said. "Everything is not in proper order to get a fullblown weather system through here."

To receive copious amounts of rain, the area must be devoid of high pressure, while the socalled "jet stream" guides wet storms into the area.

Renard added that areas in the southwestern United States are forecast to receive abovenormal rainfall this year, while locations to the north may receive less-than-normal precipitation.

He construes that as a bad sign because the peninsula relies on storms generating in the Gulf

But Dr. Daniel Cayan of Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, said November is traditionally a month of transition.

"Just because it's been dry doesn't mean this winter won't be more normal," he said. "I wouldn't get too alarmed at this point."

Like the U.S. Weather Service, Cayan is keeping tabs on ocean temperatures off the state's coast. Often above-normal temperatures indicate higher amounts of rainfall.

He indicated that indeed water temperatures are slightly above normal. "At this point I'm optimistic," he said.

While not calling for a complete breakthrough in the current drought, Virginia-based weather consultant Frank Socey said rainfall in Central California will be "more than it has been."

He added that, while "moderate" amounts of rain are forecast for this winter, the following two years will be "above normal."

SPCA corrections

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank you for the article regarding The SPCA of Monterey County and its benefit shops which appeared in the Nov. 1 edition of The Pine Cone.

While the article has a very positive tone about it, there are some items which should be corrected.

1. We are known as The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and not The Society for the PROTECTION of Cruelty to Animals. We do not "protect" cruelty.

2. Not everything at The SPCA of Monterey County is the shelter. The article seemed to allude to the fact that the wildlife center as well as other things we do were all within the shelter structure, and they are not.

3. We are The SPCA of Monterey County and not The Monterey County SPCA.

4. The wildlife center does not provide rehabilitation and release of sea lions, dolphins and sea otters. I did not say that. We rescue these animals but we do not have the facilities to rehabilitate these mammals. The aquarium sometimes gets involved with the sea otters while The California Marine Mammal Center at Fort Cronkite comes down and takes the sea lions and dolphins. We do rescue and rehabilitate all other wildlife.

5. The article said, "When there is an oil spill, shorebirds are retrieved and cleaned up by specialists who work with about 150 of the other staff members at the shelter." This is incorrect. We have one full-time and one part-time staff person in the wildlife center. Everyone else is a volunteer. When there is a major oil spill, we solicit additional volunteers to help us clean the birds. We do not have the luxury or the need-for 150 staff members in the wildlife center, which, by the way, is not a part of the shelter.

6. There is not a golden eagle in the wildlife center with an injured wing due to an arrow. There is a vulture being rehabilitated because of

It is very true that the benefit shops are always in need of volunteers and I am very appreciative of your newspaper putting the word out regarding this. Thank you for your continued support. Jim Bennett

Molera has no friends

Dear Editor:

The Monterey Peninsula Schools are missing an excellent opportunity for a field trip to observe the ongoing destruction of an ecosystem. All they have to do is go to Molera State Park in Big Sur where they will see:

1. An effort to rechannel the Big Sur River, resulting in reducing the river to the size of a drainage ditch.

2. They will see what was once a magnificent grove of eucalyptus trees decimated. Several trees were cut down after a fire last year, but the cutting continued. An examination of the stumps showed that these trees were healthy. However, even the stumps of most of the trees have been removed. In previous years at this time of the year, some of the trees were covered with Monarch butterflies. On a recent trip, there were a few butterflies flying forlornly.

On the field trip, a couple of games can be played. One would be jumping across the Big Sur River (who would have thought it possible?). Another distraction would be taking a poll of the students on whether they think the long-term plans are an expansion of the parking lot.

There is one problem. None of this can be blamed on Exxon, private corporations or private landowners. Molera is public property it's ours, which makes it curious that there hasn't been a peep from the Sierra Club, the Audubon Society, the Wilderness Society, the verification only. Anonymous letters are not Protectors of the Monarch Butterflies, the Friends of This, or the Friends of That.

Apparently Molera has no friends.

Try to be nice

Dear Editor:

My store, RSVP was a participant in the beautiful fashion show at the Highlands Inn. I was very pleased at the outcome.

I am a professional businesswoman and am always aware of the people who do volunteer work. I do not have time for this, therefore, I am very grateful to them for filling this need.

Your reporter's write-up of the event (Barbara March - Coast & Country, Nov. 8), featured nothing positive and instead attacked Leslie Allan, the volunteer co-ordinator. I thought the write-up was mean-spirited and if she wants to tell Leslie how to behave in California, I'd like to say that in Carmel we try to be nice people and good to each other.

Carmel's Johnny Appleseed

Yesterday I looked up to see a handsome smiling face looking over our garden gate. He held two beautiful Monterey pine trees in cans. A while back, I ordered two from our Carmel Forestry Department, and had almost forgotten about them. Our own Carmel City Forester, Gary Kelly, explained how he had smashed the pine cones and taken the seeds and started them. I judge he nourished them for at least two years, maybe more, for them to grow to 18 inches high. He gave them to me with great pride; and lifelt love for the trees and our own "Mother Earth."

This is proof positive that one person CAN make a difference. What a sweet, wonderful thing Gary Kelly is doing for all of us. Yes Gary, you are, making a difference. Here's to our own "Johnny Appleseed" of Carmel! We all need to plant and nourish more trees. We should all plant redwood and pine trees all along our coast to replace the millions cut and diseased.

Thank you Gary.

The play's the thing

Dear Editor:

As a neighbor of the Carl Cherry Foundation, located on the northwest corner of Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel, I attend plays that are held in Cherry Hall from time to time.

This last weekend I was invited to the Forest Theater Guild's production of On Golden Pond adapted from Ernest Thompson's play first performed in 1978. Although I found the movie rather dull, I was really surprised at how well David Miller of the guild and director Gregory de Silva turned the story into two hours of marvelous adult humor which blends senior, middle-aged, and young adult psychology into a

Governing California: Challenge for the '90s

CALIFORNIA IS a wondrous place, with geographic and climatic diversity that provide us with high desert, majestic mountains with thick forests, a beautiful seacoast, and rich agricultural lands that can grow enough food to feed almost the whole nation. We have taken advantage of this diversity to become the sixth largest economic force in the world. California has become the land of plenty and a place of opportunity: the "American dream" come

That dream, however, is vanishing for many, especially the quarter-of-a-million homeless persons who live in our communities. The high cost of housing, traffic congestion, air pollution, and crowded schools, are among the problems which have given us all serious cause to be anxious about our future. The fiscal crisis experienced by state government this year has fueled these concerns.

What is happening to California? We are growing by 2,000 new citizens a day. In 1900, the population was 1.5 million. Today it is 30 million and is expected to increase by 30 percent over the next 20 years. Our ability to accommodate this increasing population and the resulting urbanization has strained us in several California has always been a "bottoms-up, local control" state. The Legislature has adopted statutory principles for local governments such as the Planning and Zoning Law, and the Open Meetings Act. These state laws, however, tell local governments how to go about making their decisions, not what decisions to make or how to finance them.

Cities, counties, and special districts are the governments closest to the people. They are the ones which provide the tangible services such as street repair, garbage collection, fire protection, libraries, and health care for the poor. They have generally performed this mission well, but they are finding it increasingly difficult to provide both the services which residents want and the responsibilities which state law requires them to

In past years, if a city needed a new fire station or sewer plant and didn't have savings to pay for it, the city council just increased the property taxes. The voters changed that in 1978. Instead, cities, counties, and districts have turned to "user fees" and to the state and federal government. Local government's dependence on state revenue transfers has increased each year since the adoption of Proposition 13.

Unfortunately, at a time when local governments are faced with the biggest challenger in their history - managing our incredible growth - both state and federal funds are drying up. That is why local governments were so impacted by the state budget crisis. Just when local governments needed more state revenue sharing, the state reduced revenue transfers to counties.

To soften the county loss, cities and disticts, including school districts, are now required to pay counties for collecting and distributing their share of the property tax and for booking arrestees into the county jail. These are services which counties have historically provided to other local governments "for free."

It is unfortunate, to say the least, but almost every local government in California has felt the state's belt being tightened. Local elected officials are complaining vociferously about this new burden.

The "solution" to the state's 1990 fiscal crisis was a temporary one. The situation will be worse next year and we are running out of stopgap measures. The only real answer is major structural reform. That is why as chairman of the Local Government Committee I have been holding hearings on growth management and fiscal reform. I am convinced that neither problem can be solved independently.

Along with our incredible growth and recent restrictions on our ability to raise adequate revenues, we have experienced a blurring of the distinctions between our different levels of government. When a city increases the number of arrests it makes, county jail costs go up. When a county hospital cuts back services or closes its doors, city residents are impacted. When the federal government cuts housing funds or the state reduces mental health funding. there are more homeless persons on our city streets. We have reached a time in history when walls are coming down, not going up. Look at Eastern Europe. There's printed at the Audi

Residents don't care who provides services. They just want to make sure the fire truck arrives, or the road is paved, or the local hospital is open. That is why I am taking a serious look at what level of government can provide services most effectively, who should be responsible for paying for them, and where that money should come from.

I have invited local officials to join me in developing legislation that will ensure that all levels of government in California, including cities, counties, and districts, have the resources they need to provide the basic services which our citizens expect. Hopefully Gov. Wilson will become an active partner in this effort.

very esoteric message for all of us.

The play has six very talented actors with the cast led by Jim Jensen and Ramona Davis as Norman and Ethel Thayer. I would highly recommend that everyone who enjoys a good play in an intimate atmosphere go see it!

On Golden Pone runs Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m., and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, through Dec. 7. Tickets may be ordered by calling the Forest Theater Guild at 626-1681. Due to the explicit language in the script, I would rate the play PG-13.

PB incorporation effort comes to a quick end

By DAVID LELAND

IT TOOK less than five minutes this week for PBCSD directors to unanimously dismantle an effort to incorporate Pebble Beach.

In truth, Pebble Beach voters left little doubt regarding incorporation, having come to the polls in record numbers (almost 80 percent of the 3,802 registered voters), to oppose Measure M.

Before Measure M was defeated, the PBCSD had been poised to spend almost $95,000 to prepare an environmental impact report for the county Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO). LAFCO is the lead agency in turning unincorporated areas into cities.

With 65 percent of Pebble Beach residents opposing Measure M, an advisory vote providing direction to PBCSD, the issue was deemed all but dead.

Thus an end has come to the latest incorporation push, which began about two years ago amid a consultant's rosy predictions of hefty hostelry tax revenues, local political control and much-needed capital improvements in the Del Monte Forest.

The Nov. 6 results, however, came as little surprise to the Committee for Incorporation, which hired Monterey-based Pulse Research to conduct a poll in September forecasting public sentiment on incorporation.

Pulse's prediction: 68 percent against incorporation.

The same poll found that "there is a strong agreement that incorporation would lead to higher taxes, an unnecessary level of bureaucracy and increased requirements for low-income housing."

The Committee For Incorporation appears to have been unsuccessful in carrying out Pulse's advice.

"The campaign message needs to convey that those issues can only be evaluated in light of study and reasonable examination of the issues," said Pulse spokesperson Jane Sullivan. Instead, residents decided against replacing the county's land use plan with one that could potentially loosen rules regarding development.

Surprisingly, the poll revealed that those opposing incorporation invested little stock in either the Pebble Beach Co. or Monterey County.

Almost 38 percent of the respondents disagreed that the company was a good neighbor, while 40 percent found the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to be unresponsive to the community.

John Tormey, chairman of the Committee Against Incorporation, told the PBCSD board that his group would "remain politically alert at all times" regarding future incorporation attempts.

MEANWHILE, THE PBCSD is still faced with a myriad of water-system deficiencies.

According to a report by the Monterey firm of Engineering-Science, Inc., "the Pebble Beach water distribution and storage system is deficient in its ability to provide reliable and adequate fire flow in five areas."

These include:

- Undersized distribution mains.
- Inadequate storage in the two pressure zones.
- Insufficient fire hydrants.
- Inadequate pump capacity.
- Absence of permanent standby power generation facilities.

The total cost for the five-year capital improvement program is almost $15 million, according to the report.

With a annual budget of about $3 million, it is apparent that the PBCSD will need to augment its funding.

Options include a bond issue, partial funding by Califorina-American Water Co., an assessment district for residents and county funding.

The PBCSD has scheduled a special study session for 9:30 a.m. Friday, Jan. 18, to hear resident input and study funding options.

Planners seek specific plan for problem area in northeast Carmel

By FRANK GEORGE

AT ITS Nov. 14 meeting, the Carmel Planning Commission unanimously approved the drafting of a specific plan for additions and parking on a problematic block in northeast Carmel.

Homeowners on the block want to prevent new second-story additions from making the private road running through the block from becoming a "dark tunnel." The section is described as "block 45, between Santa Rita, Guadalupe, Fourth Avenue and Fifth Avenue" in planning department maps.

The houses are surrounded by a historically siginificant Carmel stone wall, which was built by Frank Smith in the 1920s. Smith built the wall to create an estate, which originally had only a couple of structures in the middle of it, but has since been developed.

"I think we're getting awfully involved in this for the planning commission," said Commissioner Barbara Lysle, who made the motion for the plan.

The concept must now be approved by the city council at the Dec. 4 meeting. The plan would address each home individually and set precedence for parking and future additions on the block.

Art Black of the Carmel Fire Department pointed out that fire vehicles and ambulances do not have clear access to the block when cars are parked along the street. He said firefighters would probably fight blazes by draping hoses over the wall and spraying the flames from back yards.

"We certainly aren't going to drag patients over the wall to get them to the public right of way," said Black. He said he would be "ecstatic" if the side of the road were cleared by installing "No Parking" signs.

A proposal for a second-story addition to a house owned by Russ Woodlief on Santa Rita Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues was the catalyst for the thorny issue.

Al Saroyan, who is drawing the plans for the addition, said the problem is "growing like a snowball." Saroyan submitted a proposal outlining criteria for the plan, including no building footprints could be expanded and no additions can be made within 15 feet of the rear property line. The center of the 20-foot wide private drive is considered the rear property boundary.

The proposal was signed by Saroyan and three other residents from the block.

Shirley Crist of Carmel told the commissioners Saroyan's 15-foot setback idea would not work for a few of the houses that are only 3 and a half feet from the road. This means they would only have a 12-and-a-half-foot setback.

Crist's mother, Esther Criddle, owns a house on the west side of Guadalupe between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

Doyle Clayton of Carmel Valley argued for a plan preventing homeowners from cutting through the wall, adding the structure is "historically valuable." Clayton also hoped the ordinance would prohibit erecting second stories too close to the private drive.

Clayton's father, Jack, owns a house on the southwest corner of Fourth Avenue and Guadalupe.

The commissioners agreed the wall should be preserved, but Commissioner Philip Coniglio also wasn't prepared to dictate the block's fate. Commissioner Lindsay Hanna supported the motion, but he said he wishes the residents' plans could be expedited more quickly.

If the council agrees to direct the planning staff to prepare a specific plan, the residents and the planning department staff will hammer out an agreement that will try to address all concerns. The plan must then be approved by both the commission and the council.

Brian Roseth, associate planner, said the plan would take approximately five months to complete. He said the block would have to be surveyed at the expense of the homeowners.

The concealing perimeter wall has encouraged the residents to treat the space between each house and the wall as a back yard. The area between the houses and the inner drive is used as a front yard.

Roseth said ownership of the strip between the front of the wall and the exterior streets will also be considered in the draft. The private drive acts as an easement and the fronting of each property extends 10 feet onto the road.

IN OTHER action the commission approved the addition of a mural, outdoor heaters and lights and a bench to Cactus Jack's, a new restaurant on the east side of San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth.

The mural is a moody depiction of coyotes howling at the moon in a Southwest setting. It will decorate one of the walls on the outdoor patio where the lights and heaters will be placed. Lysle rejected the idea of the mural, saying it would have a commercial appearance. She instead recommended planters for the wall, but Coniglio said he didn't think plants would "do too well" on the wall.

Coniglio motioned for approval of the additions, saying there are several restaurants in Carmel with exterior heating systems, and he appreciates the idea of "brightening up" the allegate where the courtyard is located.

Roseth then told the commission the city's General Plan discourages evening uses in the commercial area. Coniglio asked the owner, Steve Whitfall, what the hours would be. Whitfall said the eatery will be open from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m., which seemed to satisfy the majority of the commissioners.

In the 5-2 decision, Lysle and Commissioner Steve Poohar dissented. A new bench near the front entrance outside the restaurant was also part of the approved request. The item had been continued from the Oct. 24 meeting.

In other action, the commissioners approved revisions to a house on the north side of Ocean between Torres and Santa Fe.

The owner, John Paganelli, had put stucco siding on the building without commission approval. Wooden shingle siding had been approved for the structure at a planning commission hearing last year, but there was confusion between planning department staff and the contractor during the building inspection process, resulting in the wrong siding being installed.

Commissioners, citing the confusion between the city and property owner, while still showing their disapproval of the siding, approved the revision 6-1, with Poohar dissenting. Poohar said he was unable to support the motion without first having a formal public hearing for the reconsideration of the design.

Lysle said, "I think it looks fine and I think we should approve it."

THE WROUGHT iron gate and the Carmel stone wall are mainstays at a troublesome block in northeast Carmel. Residents from the area addressed problems peculiar to the block at the Nov. 14 planning commission meeting. The commission approved a motion which may lead to the drawing of a specific plan for the area.

Wilderness swap signed into law, but relief may not be in sight

By FRANK GEORGE

PRESIDENT GEORGE Bush signed a wilderness land exchange bill Nov. 8, opening the way for a new dam on the Carmel River, but water district officials say the dam can't be built soon enough for the drought-stricken peninsula.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District general manager Jim Cofer, water board chairman Dick Heuer and district engineer Andrew Bell gave a press conference on Nov. 15 to announce the signing of the bill.

The bill authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to trade 23 acres of protected wilderness land for 140 acres of private land donated by the district and to be designated wilderness. The 23 acres will then be flooded by the new Los Padres Dam.

Cofer said the threat of a fifth arid winter may create the need for a seawater desalination plant as an interim project. Heuer cited estimates saying the dam could take anywhere from 15 to 40 years to complete. Cofer said a desalination plant could be in operation in about four years after the necessary state and federal agency approvals were obtained.

Cofer added the plant could compute to a 15to 20-percent increase in area water bills, saying side effects from the drought have already negated a water bill hike close to that amount.

Heuer said a dam would "facilitate projected growth" on the peninsula, but there will be "conditions" on how much water the district would appropriate for new development.

Heuer said the federal and state agencies are waiting for an environmental impact statement before the approval process begins on the dam. The district asked EIP Associates of San Francisco to prepare the environmental reports, and Cofer said they're near completion. Heuer said the distribution and approval process may be finished within a year.

Cofer said although a new Seaside well was approved by the Seaside Planning Commission on Nov. 14, this facility and a Del Rey Oaks well may not suffice as adequate short-term solutions to the peninsula's water problems. He did say, however, that the Seaside well is expected to be supplying Cal-Am customers next spring, as was previously projected.

Saying the current dry period is the worst on record, Cofer noted existing large reservoirs in other districts would have "insufficiencies" in a similar drought.

Heuer also said water districts around the nation are having trouble getting regulatory agencies to approve new dam projects. He noted a proposed dam in the Denver area was rejected in Washington after the Denver district had spent $4 million on preliminary studies.

Cofer said aside from the Los Padres site, five alternative long-range water facilities are discussed in the EIR/EIS. A 23,000-acre foot New San Clemente Dam is being considered. It would be located one-half mile downstream from the existing San Clemente facility.

Three reservoirs on Carmel River tributaries are also outlined in the document. A 10,000-acre foot storage facility on the Chupines Creek is discussed, as well as a 6,000-acre foot Cachagua Creek reservoir and a 25,000-acre foot project near Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

District engineer Bell said $12 or $13 million in Los Padres Dam funds will go toward a fish transportation system near the new dam.

"It's basically trapping and trucking the fish, either upstream or downstream, depending on where they want to go," Bell said. He said the fish passage at the existing Los Padres Dam is "woefully inadequate," adding all the long-term supply options include new fish facilities.

Heuer said the lack of rain is not only causing damage to the fish population, but "severe damage" to riparian vegetation along the Carmel River.

CARMEL LETS OUT BELT FOR HOLIDAY Carmel was stuffed on Thanksgiving Day. It was stuffed with people and the people were stuffed with turkey. And today while the evidence of turkey stuffing has somewhat subsided, the people are still here.

They started coming early and they are staying late. And it looked for a time as if there wouldn't be a place to put all of them. A town can't just sit back and let out its belt - at least not

But alas, Carmel is sitting back and letting out its belt. And it causes us to wonder if the fight to "keep it as it was" isn't a losing fight.

A $500 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who stole a bronze plaque fastened to a granite boulder in Pebble Beach.

A resident reported the theft of the 15-by-18-inch plaque, dedicating the Indian Village area in Del Monte Forest to permanent open space. The dedication ceremony took place Oct. 29, and was attended by former President Gerald Ford, a board member of the Pebble Beach Corp.

End of an era

THAT WOULD be the voluminous amount of signage at Hanson Galleries on Ocean and San Carlos.

It seems that city hall officials had given the gallery what they believed was ample time to scale down their seven signs to a mere three.

Before the yearlong battle began, the city planning commission voted to allow the gallery two extra signs to entice business.

But Hanson Galleries was too slow to comply and received a $50 citation Nov. 2 for having illegal signs.

As an aside, the signs are down and the city is once again happy.

Good stuff...The Caddyshack Cafe, located in the Court of the Golden Bough (off Ocean Avenue), has proved to be a well-hidden secret for locals in search of good food at reasonable prices.

Under the ownership of Christian and Jena Viollaz, the Caddyshack Cafe opened up this fall to serve traditional American lunches and dinners that lean to the French side.

Christian, who also serves as head chef, received his training at Evian and cooked in Geneva, Switizerland for two years. He also cooked at La Provence in Pacific Grove and, most recently, served as head chef at L'Escargot in Carmel.

Lunch menu selections feature a variety of salads (including breast of duck with raspberry vinaigrette), burgers, omelettes, vegetarian pasta, spaghetti Bolognaise, fresh fish and All-American steak and potatoes.

Dinner starts off with soup and salad selections and progresses to three pasta dishes (the aforementioned, plus a "lite" cream seafood pasta), with entrees ranging from charbroiled shrimp, squid St. Tropez, sand dabs Meuniere, filet mignon, and rack of lamb, to such exotic fare as Frog Legs Provencale and Confit de Canarde, a "Caddy Masters specialty."

Christian also takes great pride in his deserts, which include creme brulee, creme caramel, crepes, peach Melba, and a hot Tarte Tatin that is a perfect marriage of French pastry and American ap-

Why the name, you ask? Well, it seems that Christian served as a caddy at Spyglass, Pebble Beach and Spanish Bay during the past three years. And yes, he is a fan of the Bill Murray-Chevy Chase movie of the same name.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. for lunch, 4 to 10 p.m. for dinner, except for Monday, when Christian is presumably out on the links working on his game. Telephone: 625-4331.

A new face...Herb Towle, president of The Prudential Towle International Realty's Carmel office, has welcomed Johnathan Cope into his office.

Cope comes to Carmel from Prudential in Los Angeles, where last year he garnered three awards - Rookie of the Year, Multi-Million $ Club and Leading Edge Society.

Cope has a bachelor of science degree in oceanography and has served as a volunteer staff research member at Scripps Institute of

He has copyrighted and processed patents for mariculture and water filtration systems.

A worthy cause...Christmas events for the Alliance on Aging. which provides services for older adults in the county, include a Christmas "Wish Tree" and a drawing for prizes donated by Carmel Plaza merchants.

The tree will be on display from Nov. 23 until Christmas. Let an Alliance on Aging volunteer help you select a Christmas wish for a person the Alliance serves and to accept contributions for the holiday drawing.

The drawing is slated for 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14. Tickets to the Pavarotti concert in March are included, and winners will be selected by actress and grand lady Joan Fontaine.

Impressive appointment...Lee Canonico, co-owner of RE/MAX Monterey Peninsula, has been named to the RE/MAX of California Media Advertising and Advisory Committee for 1990-91.

Canonico and partners Alan Cordan and Bert Aronson operate the office at 26362 Carmel Rancho Lane at the mouth of the valley.

Crossroads news...Kim Robinson has taken over the position of marketing director at The Crossroads Shopping Center.

Most recently, Robinson served as account executive at KOCN-FM in Pacific Grove, where her duties included advertising services. marketing strategy and copy writing.

Before that she worked as account executive at KSBW-TV and WAND-TV in Illinois.

With a bachelor's degree in communications from Purdue University, Robinson has also coordinated fund-raisers for Arthritis Foundation Telethon and United Cerebral Palsy Telethon in Illinois.

Open sesame...Char Etienne has announed the formation of CHARge d'Affaires, a special events planning and coordination company, based in Carmel.

Etienne's expertise in corporate planning, unique outings and charitable fund-raisers was finely tuned at Stonepine where she spent four years as PR and event coordinator.

Among her credits are the recreation of the South as depicted in Gone With The Wind as a fund-raiser for Santa Catalina School and the recently sold-out "Phantasy Ball" on behalf of Natividad Medical Center.

CHARge d'Affaires is the exclusive representative of Le Masquerade on the Monterey Peninsula.

Also new to Carmel...Margo's Fashions, located on San Carlos and Seventh (next to the Royal Danish Cafe), features designer fashions for women.

Created in a delighful blend of cotton and rayon for the slim and not-so-slim, the styles are flowing, exotic, unusual and feminine. Accessories also abound to make outfits a smashing success.

History reborn

THE FIRST Murphy is about to be reborn!

Following a period filled with hard work behind the scenes, plans for the First Murphy are being finalized by the First Murphy Committee, the Mayor's First Murphy Park Committee, and City Hall. On Nov. 15 the Mayor's Committee heartily endorsed the landscaping and exterior design plans.

In its new location — the city lot on Lincoln north of Sixth — the First Murphy represents the exciting accomplishments possible through civic cooperation and community spirit.

As the earliest building constructed by Carmel-by-the-Sea's master builder M.J. Murphy, the house received the first-ever Historic Building designation from the Carmel City Council in May Citizens, businesses and public officials rallied together to rescue this modest early Carmel cottage. Those same individuals and organiations, plus new supporters who have flocked to the cause, persevere in the dynamic effort to restore the First Murphy to its original turn-of-the-century aspect.

This groundswell of interest clearly reveals the strong local concern for preservation as a top priority.

From the residents who donated generously to those businesses who provided food and equipment free of charge, to the public agencies and individuals who contributed many hours of their expertise, the successful move of the house and continuing progress is a reflection of their participation.

What will result from this commingling of preservation efforts? The Mayor's Committee has determined that the First Murphy will be dedicated by public use for the benefit of residents. Examples of this future use: activities, including chess and bridge; a place for locals to read newspapers and socialize; changing exhibits of early Carmel-by-the-Sea memorabilia; relaxation in the park-like setting. Brochures will be available on site, describing the house's history, the intriguing M.J. Murphy himself, and other early dwellings of singular character.

As specific plans for the renovations and landscaping are completed, they will be exhibited at the site. You will be kept informed of the updated status by this column's discussion of these plans and related issues as they develop.

All plans must receive the usual city approvals from the appropriate commissions (a procedure which may take several months) but the wait will be well worth it. Careful planning at this stage will produce significant results: a First Murphy which reflects the value residents should place on their unique history; a guide for the preservation of other historic homes; and promotion of respect in all Carmelites for our irreplaceable architectural heritage.

Donations are essential - and gratefully accepted - for the huge amount of work still to be completed. All past and future contributors will be recognized at the site for their far-sighted generosity.

Many opportunities for giving are available. For example, Don and Joan Miller, local residents and proprietors of Old Rose & Silver and the Willow Tea Gift Shop, have expressed great interest in the project, offering period art, furniture and design for display in the renovated First Murphy.

Equally valuable contributions are sought from skilled builders and craftsmen. All carpenters, roofers, bricklayers, plasterers plumbers, electricians and enthusiastic others are urged to contact the First Murphy Committee, if you have not already done so. Construction is anticipated to commence in early spring.

Any owner of a historic or architecturally significant building can go through the same process of saving their structure...without, of course, the complex task of hoisting it up on a crane and moving it three blocks! The steps for Historic Building designation are available to all Carmel properties; interested property owners are urged to contact the First Murphy Committee at the Carmel Historical Survey for information and assistance (see information below).

The intrinsic value of our older structures increases daily, as increasing numbers of such buildings are being torn down or renovated beyond all recognition. We hope this project will buttress the growing recognition and appreciation for preservation of our unique community and historic lifestyle.

CV advisory committees struggling to be heard

By SUSAN BECK

CARMEL VALLEY citizen advisory committees are preparing to challenge the Monterey County Planning Department over their role as advisory bodies.

The Carmel Valley and Cachagua advisory committees are viewed as hostile elements to the county planning staff, a situation that needs change, said Max Chaplin, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) at the association's Nov. 14 board meeting.

"We (residents) need to make the committees work, so that we can be the front line of integrity for the valley," Chaplin said. "However, as long. as the planning department views the committees as competition, they can not operate as they are intended to."

The planning staff has some misconceptions about what the advisory committees are about, said CVPOA board member Allan Sandstrum.

They are appointed by the Monterey County Planning Commission and are the first to review a proposed building project. Their basic mandate is to decide if the project comforms to the general plans of the building site area.

Sandstrum also said that all advisory committees suffer from some lack of knowledge about general plans for their areas.

He suggested that all the advisory committees in the area get together to come up with a united front concerning building footprints and design.

"The county doesn't pay that much attention about peripherals. A lot can be done with a unified force. CVPOA could be the guiding force to get this going," Sandstrum said.

Responding to the idea of advisory committees joining forces, board member Ileene Crane-Franks said that the nemesis of the advisory committees is the permit process.

"The permit process is like an elephant, and the different committees are like the proverbial blind man looking at the elephant from different views, no one can see the entire beast."

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman supports the suggestion of some additional staffing of advisory committees with members who are more knowledgable about building requirements, said Sandstrum.

He added that the first thing the Monterey County Board of Supervisors asks is how both the advisory committees and planning department voted on a particular building project, which reaffirms the importance of the residents committees.

Board member Roger William said that perhaps Strasser Kauffman could be instrumental in creating an information workshop about specific design requirements, such as footprints, setbacks, and viewsheds.

A SOLUTION about Rosie's Bridge on Robinson Canyon Road in the village is finally at hand, said board member Rod Mills. Construction for a new bridge will begin in the dry season of 1992.

The existing bridge is worn out, Mills said. A loaded cement truck, or a water-filled fire engine may create problems crossing the bridge, he said. The new bridge will have a concrete span which will provides for separate pedestrian and equestrian lanes.

Federal funding will cover 80 percent of the cost for the bridge and 20 percent will come from the county, said Mills.

Other road news comes from the Monterey County Public Works Department. About 4,000 reflectors will be installed on Carmel Valley Road from Highway 1 to Pilot Road by the end of January, said Mills.

The new reflectors will enable safer traveling on Carmel Valley Road, however, new figures from the public works department's annual traffic count indicated that more vehicles may alter that safe passage.

The department presented their findings to the county board of supervisors, saying that the "trigger" point for an acceptable level of traffic is as close as it can get to being exceeded, said Mills, "if it hasn't been 'pulled' already."

The county seems to be rearranging the ground rules about what constitutes the "trigger" point. The acceptable level of traffic is changed by proposing different criteria such as increased speed limits and installation of passing lanes, said Mills.

When traffic levels reach a certain trigger point, new development in the valley is restricted until improvements are made or the level decreases.

Further discussion about Carmel Valley Road brought up the question of funding. Members questioned if the allocated funds for a four-lane road were not utilized because of a negative analysis in the Environmental Impact Report (EIR), would those funds be available for other types of safety improvements? Board member Robert Greenwood said that every EIR has to have alternatives.

Water was the next issue discussed at the meeting. With the increased possibility of the drought continuing on the Monterey Peninsula, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is looking into non-Cal-Am Water Co. water production, such as private wells and small water systems.

Board member Patricia Bernardi, said that in the drought of 1976-77 there was more building than in normal years. "People built anywhere you could find a well."

As far as water rights, the example of the Tularcitos and Rancho San Carlos areas, which are not in the district, but are in the vallev's watershed, brought about discussion of developing a well-monitoring plan.

Bernardi further pointed out that when non-Cal-Am production increases, Cal-Am service production must decrease to offset that amount. On Nov. 5 the district voted to adopt Supply Option 5, cutting the district to an allocation of 16,744 acre feet produced by Cal-Am, 15,572 acre feet of that available for consumption.

The meeting came to a close with the news that the association now has 1,136 members.

Floor area ratio ballot question will undergo scrutiny by council

By FRANK GEORGE

AFTER BRINGING the matter up at the Nov. 6 city council meeting, Councilman Ken White says he will be "surprised" if the floor area ballot idea is abandoned at the Dec. 4 hearing, where the council is slated to again discuss its wording.

The decision to put the question on the agenda once more, however, was not well received by Carmel developer Chris Tescher. He said if the council does decide to pull the item off the March 6 ballot, the real estate and development community will put their own referendum before the public.

The ballot currently asks voters to choose either a 40 or 45 percent floor area ratio (FAR) for residential area homes. White said he does not find this language clear enough, adding it doesn't correspond to the council's discussion of the ballot measure at its August meeting.

White said the original emphasis pointed toward asking residents to vote yes or no on a 40 percent floor area ratio (FAR). That number is currently under ordinance, but at the August meeting, the council decided to also present a 45 percent option to the voters in the March 6

The council adopted the 40 percent standard at that meeting, but the General Plan still sets the limit at up to 45 percent. Election results will alter or sustain General Plan guidelines.

"There's no doubt in my mind (the councilmembers who approved White's motion), are afraid the 40 percent won't pass," Tescher said. He bases that on opinions he has received from people he has spoken with.

To Final Construction

White insisted the issue is not on the agenda again because of fear. He said he brought it up after studying the General Plan and looking at the ballot.

"My experience on the planning commission says to me, if you're going to amend the General Plan by vote of residents, the exact General Plan wording should be the ballot language. (White served on the Carmel Planning Commission during the Eastwood administration, which ran from 1986 to 1988.)

Tescher disagrees with this psychology, saying, "If you vote 'no," then the question is, what is the FAR?" Tescher said if the 40 percent were rejected on the ballot recommended by White. the council could choose any number below 45

White said if the 40 percent ballot fails, it would "behoove" the council to bring the standard back to 45 percent.

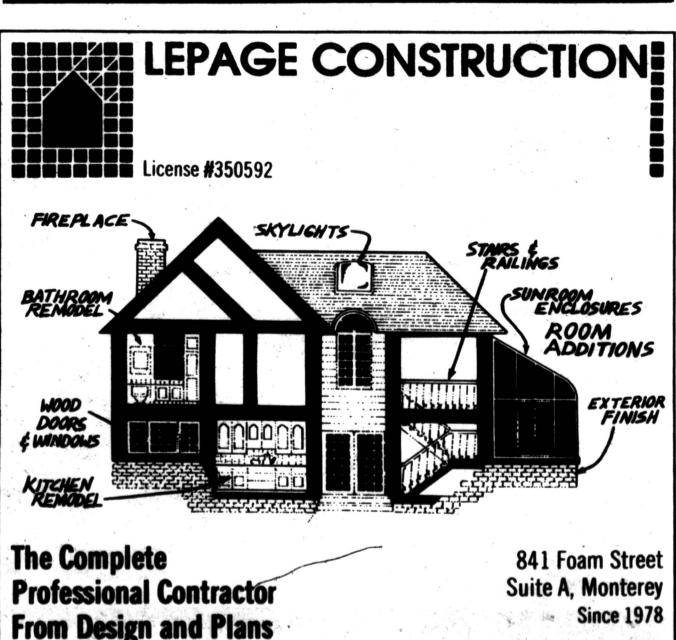

Asked why he and members of the real estate and building industries are so adamant about the 5 percent difference, Tescher said a 40 percent FAR would "monetarily" down-zone residential homes. He said according to some computer work he did, the average 1,400-square-foot Carmel house sells for approximately $75,000 less than a typical 1,600-square-foot structure.

White said due to the backlog of building applications falling under the old 45 percent guideline, the community will not see any results of the 40 percent FAR for a few years.

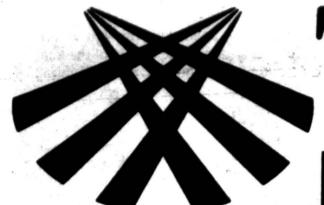

Tescher said, "If I have my way, we'll never see the effect of a 40 percent FAR."

IN OTHER matters. White also commented on the council's Nov. 6 denial of a street fair spon-Continued on page 28

To say what we mean

"I KNOW the things I'm good at and the things I'm not good at, and those are the things I do." Don't we all?

Lines such as that one can be heard nightly on television by politicians, professional athletes, newscasters, almost anyone we'd care to mention. Sometimes the language coils back upon us in casual conversation and we end up being bitten by our own words. A similar comment is mouthed by former Los Angeles Rams lineman Fred Dryer, who now has his own successful television cop show. It is, however, on Cheers, where Dryer occasionally appears as Sam's ex-jock friend and now supercilious Boston sportscaster "Big Dave," that he says, "The world is filled with winners and losers, and here's hoping you're one of them."

The line is intentionally structured for its humor, but many people unintentionally do the same thing in daily conversation. We know what we mean, and usually the person to whom we say it does, too, but somehow it comes out wrong anyway. If we have this sort of difficulty with our own language, think how others, to whom English is not the primary language, struggle with the frustrations of it all.

Gorbachev and Bush seem to have solved the language problem. The Soviet president said that he and President Bush had exchanged many letters on various issues. When asked in what language they wrote, Gorbachev responded, "The president wrote in English and I don't read English. I answered him in Russian and he doesn't read Russian. So, we just agreed." With a small, well-aimed barb at Bush's well-known tendency to proceed with caution, Gorbachev added a new word to the vocabulary saying "...we must preserve the elements of cautiousness..."

In March of 1988, an angry mob of Iranians attacked the Soviet Embassy in Tehran. Attempting to exhibit their displeasure to the western press, the Russians fought their own battle with the English language citing "instigatory reports" and "impressing documentation." "The situation," the Soviet spokesman assured the reporters, "is causing serious concern among Soviet leaders," as opposed to concern of a frivolous nature. His English was, nevertheless, better than my Russian.

Even with English as my native language, there are words and phrases which still confound me. What for example are durable goods? The explanation for the Consumer Price Index refers to them as consumer products designed to last for three years or more, such as major appliances, heavy equipment, or as Jeff MacNelly says, lunch meat. My wife, Viki, would place Twinkies in that category.

Why do we make the distinction between egoist and egotist. Either one can be discribed as someone with severe I strain. One who fell into that description and with whom I worked years ago was often described as a "legend in his own mind." Sometimes entities other than people can meet that criterion. Exxon comes to mind.

The presidnet of that environmentally concerned organization (watch for future commercials), was apparently upset with the attacks upon his firm by Alaska's representatives. Said he, "Twenty-five years ago Alaska suffered an act of God, the Good Friday earthquake. We didn't waste time seeking to punish the cause of that disaster." Retorted state Senate president Tim Kelly, "As far as I know, God wasn't drunk when the earthquake hit." Correct. She is a well-known teetotaler.

Duplicate copy is an interesting term best described as a redundant redundancy, which is also what wise, old adage is. Have you seen the sign which reads "Total capacity of the room is limited to 50 persons?" Forget for a moment that the correct plural of person is people. Focus instead on the idea that total, capacity and limit all have the same meaning in this phrase. Less objectionable, but interesting nonetheless, are the phrases a cold glass of beer and a hot cup of coffee. Does anyone really care about the temperature of the vessel? How many of us really desire insurance for catastrophic health?

How would you know if you were sold a pig in a poke? Most Americans don't even know what a poke is. The origin is Germanic, actually Norman French carried over into middle-English, the poke being a bag. The term alludes to getting ourselves into a predicament unawares, which I submit is the view of the pig, too. This is not to be confused with in the bag, a term which comes to us from the retail trade, the original version being all wrapped up. The terms still coexist, as they did when retailers switched from wrapping goods with paper and string to placing them first into plain brown bags and now into exotic designer bags, which must on occasion be worth more than their contents. The phrase he was bagged or he was really in the bag is a distant relative, having more in common with the pig. It refers to being so drunk, one is unable to distinguish one's surroundings.

If that seems to be mind boggling to you, it's easily understood (not very understandable). In Shakespeare's All's Well That Ends Well, a player says "You boggle shrewedly; every feather starts you." He is referring to the excess of excitability of the man. When a horse "bogled" (one "g"), it was believed it had seen a ghost. In time, we have come to use it for disbelief or perplexity, which I suspect is all the more true of foreigners attempting to decipher the complexities of English.

N.B.A. Hot Shot contest set

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department and Carmel Youth Center are sponsoring the 1990 N.B.A. Hot Shot Contest.

The contest is scheduled Saturday, Dec. 8, beginning 10 a.m. at Carmel Middle School. Hot shot, designed for boys and girls ages 9 through 18, tests a youngster's speed, shooting, dribbling and rebounding ability within a one-minute period. Hot shot involves shooting baskets from five hot spots marked on one-half of a basketball court.

Registration will be taken at the door and there is no fee to participate. For further information, call the Carmel Youth Center at 624-3285.

Photojournalist Frans Lanting speaks

African cultures, wildlife in transition and his extensive work in Botswana will be the focus of a talk delivered by photojournalist Frans Lanting at the Santa Catalina School Performing Arts Center in Monterey. The free program begins at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 26.

Lanting, who lives in Santa Cruz when he is not traveling in remote areas worldwide, has produced award-winning images for Life, National Geographic and GEO. One of his photographs was used for the cover on the 1988 A Day in the Life of America.

Lanting's style blends a naturalist's understanding with an artist's vision. He has won numerous award in the Picture of the Year and World Press Photo competitions, and he has been recognized by the American Society of Magazine Photographers and the American Museum of Natural History.

Building issues addressed

"Building or Rebuilding a House; Financial, Legal and Construction Issues," is the title of a program to be presented Wednesday, Nov. 28 at the Monterey College of Law. The hours are 7 to 9:30 p.m. and the fee is $15 per person, or $25 per couple.

A panel of speakers will discuss such issues as the permit process, obtaining a loan, choosing a general contractor, title reports and notice of completion.

Speakers will include Richard Avila, general contractor; Geoffrey Loftus, First National Bank of Monterey County; Anthony Lombardo, Salinas attorney; Pete Scudder, president, Monterey Builders Exchange; Rick Wilson, First American Title Insurance Co.

The program is co-sponsored by the Monterey College of Law and the County Bar Association. Because space is limited, advance reservations are required. For information or to register, call 373-3301

Carmel-By-The-Code

WHY DO we live here? Why do we work here? What keeps us here? The weather, the gorgeous scenery, the Carmel-by-the-Sea quality of life. The first two items are freely given to us; the last is achieved through hard work on the part of citizens and elected or appointed city officials who cooperate to support the common goals and values which make our lives here so pleasant.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code (CMC) may be loved by a the time, but it certainly makes our community existence much more pleasant all of the time. The CMC ensures that the city is kept free from piles of debris, cotton-candy stands, RV parks, highrises, billboards, tattoo parlors, and a lot of other things which the community has deemed undesirable.

Developed and refined since 1926, the CMC is intended to place guidelines in black and white where only unwritten rules had existed. Most of the citizens in our community follow the guidelines, just as they always have. The guidelines were written to ensure equity and promote the public welfare.

To fulfill the stated goals of the General Plan, city staff works very hard to maintain the community's high quality of life.

Across the nation, other towns whose goal is to improve or maintain their existing quality of life use the CMC as a prototype. Here in Carmel-by-the-Sea, we are fortunate to enjoy an outstanding level of this largely-tangible benefit; with the cooperation of residents and businesses, Carmel carries on as a quiet, sophisticated village.

Some things are unexplainable or distinctive, and we in Carmel like it that way. Like the fact that we don't have sidewalks in most parts of town. Or a McDonald's. Sure, most other towns have them but that is no reason for Carmel to conform to the norm. Carmelites like being unique, and the CMC helps to preserve many of those unique qualities which make up our village character.

This column is intended to clarify some of the many CMC statutes which affect many of us. In the coming months, I will discuss few people most of the time and disliked by many people some of various planning ordinances in everyday terms; if you have specific topics you would like addressed, please let me know.

(Molly Erickson, your friendly Code Coordinator, can be reached at the Community Planning and Building Department, 624-6835.)

Beyond the call

LEE CHAMBERLIN, recently retired from the Carmel Business Association after 16 years as executive director, has no intention of slowing down the pace of her active involvement in the community. Coast & Country chatted with her in a cozy corner of the Pine Inn about her future plans and favorite causes.

C & C: "Lee, among your many accolades you have been named a "Soroptimist Woman of Distinction" in both Monterey and Carmel. How long have you been actively involved in community

Lee: "In the '50s when I lived in Alaska, I was the president of the Girl Scout Council for the area north of the 64th parallel. I traveled regularly to Point Barrow, Nome and Kotzebue. The Eskimo girls didn't have anything to do and it was very satisfying to get them involved in scouting."

C & C: "You've brought your dedication to service to the peninsula and you've served, or are currently serving on many local boards, including the United Way, Leadership Monterey, Monterey County Symphony and Carmel Republican Women. How do you view the fund-raising scene on the peninsula?"

Lee: "There is so much duplication of services. Agencies would be more effective if they joined together for a common cause."

C & C: "Where do you plan to direct your attention now?" Lee: "My personal life is involved with community service and the Salvation Army is my main focus now. I believe when people donate they want to know where their money is going. The Salvation Army directs funds to people right here on the peninsula. There are a lot of homeless people here and the Salvation Army will be distributing 750 food baskets to local needy families this Thanksgiving and Christmas. That figure is up 250 from last year."

C & C: "Do you have other projects on the horizon?" Lee: "Yes, I'd like to do some administrative board training on a project basis. You know, training board members how to act. I've done board training as a member of the National Staff of the Girl Scouts and have served on a lot of boards. Once I was commissioned by the Girl Guides of Denmark to do board training in Copenhagen."

C & C: "You were with the Carmel Business Association for 16 years. Any final thoughts on your career there?"

Lee: "I always meant to get a permit to wear high heels, but never had time. Now I think I will just for the fun of it."

HELP THE HAND THAT HELPS

While we're thinking of helping those in need, let's seriously conder helping the ones who are always there when we ca firefighters.

The Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co. is a prime example of men and women who answer our calls for help. Now it's time to come to their aid.

This year the volunteers managed on an operating budget of $25,000. Finances for next year look bleak. Funds that have been paid for insurance and operating equipment are running out and there is no deep pocket.

How about taxes, you ask?

If you've previously lived in a city or unincorporated area with special districts you are accustomed to having fire protection services financed through a local tax base. Not so in Cachagua. Taxes the Cachagua residents pay go elsewhere. Check it out.

The Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co. is facing a crisis that involves everyone - including the residents of the Sky Ranch and Asoleado subdivisions and large landholders such as the vineyards and ranches - everyone who lives within the 112 square miles the firemen protect.

What's the alternative to no money?

Cutbacks, of course. The 18 volunteers answer about 60 calls a year with two pumpers, a patrol truck and a rescue vehicle. If your home or property catches fire, you can count on the Cachagua volunteers to answer yor call, but don't count on them to be well equipped if their operating budget is slashed.

Send your check - in any amount - to Jaime del Valle, captain, Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co., P.O. Box 2090, Carmel Valley, Ca 93924.

FRESH OFF THE BOAT

The first Beaujolais wine of the season arrived from France last Thursday to a rousing welcome at The Inn at Spanish Bay during a benefit for the Easter Seal Society of the Monterey Bay Region. Proclaimed drinkable by Inn General Manager John Chadwell, the Nouveau flowed through the Main Ballroom as over 500 people conducted their own taste tests.

"Young," "light," "dry," "fruity" and "it tastes good to me," were typical comments.

"A great vintage," commented banker/vintner Charles Chrietzberg.

United Way's Executive Director Dick Murnighan celebrated the vintage his own way. Dick was dapperly dressed in muted shades of grape; merlot jacket, cabernet striped tie, and white zin shirt. "This wine is probably 24 hours old," was vintner Rob is so, then Beaujolais is the first kiss." Beaujolais is typically a short-lived wine and should be enjoyed within six months. Pebble Beach Co. Director of Catering and Conventions Ginger Hopkins and her successor Kenn Madsen were Kenn Madsen, who has worked with Ginger in catering and sales for several years will succeed her at PBC. Kenn already has a few ideas up his sleeve for unique theme parties. He's hoping for a revival of "Midnight Golf," a favorite with intrepid duffers. Tiki torches on the green, fluorescent golf balls and an OK by multitiered govermental agencies are all he needs.

When he was studying to be an architect, Charles Moore, FAIA, tionally known for his desgin of civic buildings and museums. To Moore's credit are the Beverly Hills Civic Center, the Hood Museum at Dartmouth in New Hampshire and the San Antonio Art Institute in Texas. Still enamored with the peninsula, Moore will soon be adding the new Dart Wing at La Mirada to his list of accomplishments.

IRONIES AND INTRIGUES

Remember the old days at The Lodge when gentlemen were required to wear jackets and shorts and Levi's weren't allowed? The Lodge deserves a better image than flip-flops and sweat pants and is re-establishing a dress code in the Terrace Lounge. Cypress Room and Club XIX. The new rules will come into effect just days after San Francisco Giants' first-baseman Will Clark sojourned at The Lodge. From now on, watch for sports celebs like Clark in the Tap Room, the only place where casual attire will be allowed.

The Park Lane, the "community" residence by Hyatt and newly refurbished by Matteson Investment Corp., is beautifully appointed and boasts a new standard of excellence in the lifestyles of California's seniors. Residents enjoy gourmet meals, 24-hour concierge did his master's thesis on the Monterey adobes. He is now interna- and security, health services, a fitness spa, housekeeping and chauffeured transportation. To demonstrate what can be done with a collection of family heirloom furniture a typical model-apartment is decorated in elegant hominess down to the last detail. Flowers in every room, fine linens, family photos in silver frames, even a pair of kid gloves on the bureau. But wait. No TP on the bathroom roll! Better call the concierge.

> Either Ford's Department Store in Pacific Grove has a surrealistic window designer or the weather is playing tricks on the displays that line Lighthouse Avenue. An elegant holiday table in Ford's window is set for a candlelit dinner; lace tablecloth, fine china, silver and crystal. But the puce-colored candles are out of synch. They're doing a Salvador Dali number, limply hanging over the edge of the candle holders and lying prone and twisted on the table. PG Art Center, take note.

One of the prize winners at this year's annual Sammy Seagull awards admitted the evening dragged on but a lot of designers, photographers and media people came away happy. The long list of gold, silver and bronze winners included locals Tony Salazar, Lori Hughes, Melissa Thoeny, Phil Wellman, Kathryn Stark and Bill Cook. The Monterey Bay Aquarium was given a special award for overall excellence and Jerry Takigawa Design did the usual sweep. Jerry is due double congratulations. Unable to attend, he and his new bride, the former Pam Rogers, are on their honeymoon in Hawaii.

MEDIA MADNESS

Expanding the definition of traditional techniques is a favorite pastime of artists. The group currently showing at the Pacvific Grove Art Center is no exception. Betty Biggs uses salt to create unusual background effets in her multi-media paintings. Dennis High combines photographic techniques with oil paint to produce large, luminoius canvases and John LaPierre cuts and pastes to create the fresh colors in his collages.

Photographer Craig Lovell's opening night for his "Faces of Asia" exhibit was multi-sensory. Craig's brother Amos served up a delicious selection of homemade sushi to make it an Asian happening.

CYCNOTES

By Pat and Mike

WE'RE ON the set of Arnold's new movie, being filmed in Northern California. We're here to check out his weight room that he takes on location with him, and pick up some of his equipment that he is donating to the Carmel Youth Center. Unfortunately, they finished shooting late last night, so we have to wait for Arnold to wake up.

While we're waiting, let's talk about Thanksgiving. It's that time of year to give thanks...so let's give "thanks for giving!" First off thanks to all the people and businesses that have given their donations to the Carmel Youth Center in the past year; thanks to the people on the Carmel Youth Center Board of Directors who have volunteered a lot of their time; thanks to the City of Carmel for all their assistance in helping us run the Youth Center; thanks to the kids for being kids, because if they weren't, they'd be adults; then we would have to change the signs on the building to the Carmel Adult Center, and that could be fairly expensive, since sign painters don't work cheap.

By the way, the last time we checked, Arnold was still asleep. Back to hanging around the pool with the movie people.

Thanks to On the Beach Surf Shop for providing surfing and skateboarding movies to the center every week; thanks to the creators of Twin Peaks for telling us who killed Laura Palmer; Thanks to the Cincinnati Reds for showing us that the National League is far superior to the American League. Thanks to MTV because if it weren't for them, we would have to watch other stations on the big screen TV in the youth center; thanks to the parents of the kids who have attended our dances for teaching your kids proper behavior. Finally, thanks to our forefathers, foremothers, otherwise known as the pilgrims (let's not forget the Indians) for creating this holiday so we could all start our Christmas shopping a month early.

Well Arnold's still asleep. He had a very late night of filming, so I guess we'll have to wait to get the equipment fater. It has been fun hanging around the set. You wouldn't believe what they did to a brand new office building. We've been sworn to secrecy, not to talk about the movie, but it will be out next summer, and it is a sequel.

The youth Center will be closed Thursday, Nov. 22 and 23 for the Thanksgiving holiday. We will open back up on Saturday. There will be a pool tournament on Saturday afternoon. The NBA Hot Shot competition will take place on Saturday, Dec. 8th beginning at 10 a.m. at the Carmel Middle School gym. The Hot Shot competition is designed for boys and girls to test their basketball skills in shooting, dribbling and rebounding; ages 9 through 18 can compete. There is no entrance fee.

Also pertaining to hoops is the Monterey Elks Club-sponsored Free Throw Contest on Dec. 1st, also beginning at 10 a.m., also at the Carmel Middle School gym. The competition is open to boys and girls ages 9 through 13. Each participant will attempt 25 shots from the free throw line. Call for more information on either event. The youth center number is 624-3285.

Well we didn't want to leave you in suspense for two weeks, wondering if Arnold ever woke up; if we ever got the equipment; if we got to be in the movie. The answers are yes, yes, and you'll just have to watch it to find out. So as we movie people say, "That a wrap." It's nice to know this movie business didn't go to our heads, we'll do lunch sometime. Ciao!

VNA LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN FOR ADULT DAY CARE

The Visiting Nurse Association launched a major campaign on Oct. 24 to raise awareness about adult day care as well as funds to help support its three programs in Monterey County.

Adult day care is one of the newest ways to help care for the frail elderly, those with Alzheimer's Disease or other dementia, and those who are recovering from a stroke or head injury, according to Ardie Breton, VNA's adult day care director.

"For people with mental impairments, adult day care postpones or prevents their institutionalization and provides relief for family caregivers from the demands of caring for their loved one," said Breton. "Recovery from a stroke or head injury is helped along by participation in program activities and therapies."

A non-profit organization, VNA provides the programs on a sliding scale basis.

"No one is turned away because of an inability to pay," said

"Part of VNA's mission is to keep services affordable so that those who need them can benefit from them," she said. "But the cost of providing services is far greater than what clients can afford to pay. So to cover this shortfall, VNA hopes to raise $57,000 in this campaign."

Two of VNA's programs are held at the Monterey Adult School, 1295 LaSalle Avenue in Seaside. The Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center (ADCRD) offers social stimulation and light physical exercise for the mentally impaired on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Stroke, Handicapped Adult Rehabilitation and Education (SHARE) program provides crafts, activities and physical therapies on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information about these programs, call 899-7178.

Founded in Monterey County in 1950, the Visiting Nurse Association also offers skilled nursing and personal care services for the frail elderly person.

MONTEREY COUNTY RESIDENT CHOSEN AS FINALIST FOR DEWAR'S YOUNG ARTISTS RECOGNITION AWARD

Carmel Valley resident Fran Spector has been selected in the Dance Choreography category as a finalist for a Dewar's Young Artists Recognition Award.

Spector is the director of the Hidden Valley Dance Center, and has taught and performed throughout the United States and Europe. In her work she uses both classical and contemporary influences and has choreographed such diverse pieces as "Dances for Bach's Preludes and Fugues" to "The Elephant's Child," based on the story by Rudyard Kipling, with music by Bobby McFerrin.

Tony Award-winning actor Charles Durning will host this year's Second Annual Dewar's Young Artists Recognition Awards competition to be held in Los Angeles on Oct. 4 at the Pacific Design Center.

Nearly 30 arts councils from throughout California nominated artists between the ages of 25-40 in the categories of acting, poetry, piano, dance choreography and painting. Preliminary judging narrowed the field to 13 finalists.

Durning, who co-stars with Burt Reynolds in the new CBS comedy Evening Shade will preside over the final competition on Oct. 4. One winner from each category will be chosen by a panel of expert judges and will receive a cash prize from Dewar's. There will be no losers, however, as Dewar's will also reward the first and second place runners-up.

The panel of 15 judges at the final competition are all recognized experts in their respective artistic fields and include actors Al Ruscio and Marcia Rodd, internationally acclaimed pianist Mona Golabek and Milton Salkind, chairman emeritus of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

While thousands of young artists work to achieve valued recognition for their work, many are overlooked. Dewar's has responded to a strong need voiced by the artistic community to develop a competition to recognize outstanding young artists during the years when such recognition is vital to their professional success.

SIX YORK STUDENTS NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP SEMIFINALISTS

York School has announced that six of its 32-member senior class are semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Corporation's competition.

These six seniors join 1,433 students from the state of California, and 15,000 students nationwide, in the competition for scholarships worth approximately $25 million. This figure represents close to 19 percent of the senior class. This is the highest percentage of the senior class of any school and the highest absolute number students of any school in Monterey County as semifinalists. This high level of academic achievement has been consistently demonstrated over the past 10 years. An average of 39.5 percent of each senior class has qualified for honors in one of the National Merit Scholarship sponsored programs.

York School National Merit Scholarship semifinalists are Jennifer Hays. Marina; Eve Paretsky, Santa Cruz; Matthew Schuler, Monterey; Ezekiel Kruglick, Susanna Lowrey and Scott Williamson. Salinas.

Semifinalists represent about one half of one percent of each state's graduating class. There are 15,000 semifinalists nationwide. They competed against over one million students in over 19,000 United States high schools. National Merit recognition is based on scores achieved by taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMS-OT). Semifinalists now advance to the finalists level in order to qualify for Merit Scholarships. In Spring 1991, 6,000 students will be awarded National Merit Scholarships sponsored by National Merit Scholarship Corporation, other corporations, foundations, and other business organizations and colleges and universities.

The York School is a co-educational college preparatory day school which offers a traditional curriculum to academically qualified students without regard to race, creed, national or ethnic origin or economic background. Over 40 percent of the student body receives some form of financial aid, a figure twice the national average among independent schools.

A Thanksgiving poem

From the Nov. 25, 1982 Carmel Pine Cone 'A Poem'

Each year when it comes Thanksgiving I try to think of another way to give a worthy "Thank You" On this, America's special day. But what is an adequate thank you For a blossom, a moonbeam, the dew A thought, a feeling That becomes a part of you?

And what about our hopes and dreams A longed for wish come true? And those ever-precious intangibles Like love and caring too?

Lord, I've found a way to say "Thank You" For things so diverse and apart I'll gather them all together As I offer up my heart."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Old age alone isn't to blame for loss of mental ability; the culprits are health disorders. That is the conclusion of Dr. Lissy Jarvik, who studied the aging of 134 pairs of twins over a period of four decades. Dr. Jarvik is a psychiatry professor and chief of neuropsychogeriatrics at the University of California, Los Angeles. She began studying the twins in 1946, when they were in their 50s and 60s. They were given intelligence tests at intervals of about five years until 1986, when the last of the twins died. Among her findings: As the twins' average age increased from 64 to 73, their intelligence test scores improved except for those tests that focused on speed.

Alton Colline, 72, a retired dairy farmer, keeps the phones ringing in Lake Coun-ty, Florida. Every day, starting before 8 a.m., he phones 119 elderly men and women most of them disabled and housebound. His cheery, volunteer calls are part of the county's Senior Watch Program. Says one man who is immobilized by a spine condition. "Alton's calls are a real Godsend...my contact with the outside world."

sored by the Carmel Business Association (CBA). He said he might support the April 1991 event if the CBA decides to pull wine sales off the itinerary. He also said the closing of a side street rather than Ocean Avenue might alter his thinking.

White said if an accident or injury resulted from the wine-tasting fund-raiser, the city may not be liable, but any mishap could make Carmel "look bad."

"Ocean Avenue has such a mystique about it," White added. "I have a hard time visualizing the benefits we could gain by closing it down for two days."

Referring to the popular Sunset Center Homecrafters Fair, White pointed out the city has had "massively successful" events in other parts of the city.

Kathy Ritter, president of the CBA, said the street fair committee will discuss these and other alternatives when they meet on Nov. 21.

The decision to nix "Celebration Carmel" was a reversal from the council's Oct. 2 approval of the concept of closing Ocean Avenue for the fair.

Carmel Heritage sets fund-raising barbecue

CARMEL HERITAGE'S first fund-raiser for the Flanders Mansion, a Western Frolic barbecue with music and all the trimmings, has been set for 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 25, in the Martin Way cul-de-sac off Hatton Road.

The event also honors Virginia Stanton, Marjory Lloyd and Helen Wilson, three women who have been of help to Carmel Heritage in countless ways.

Carmel Heritage, in an agreement with the city, is responsible for renovating the Flanders Mansion, and the group, according to its president Roger Newell, hopes to make the house "a headquarters for historical preservation and artistic endeavors."

The Sunday afternoon gathering will feature a tour of the Flanders house and grounds. It is suggested that comfortable, warm clothes and walking shoes be worn. Guests are urged to carpool in order to avoid parking problems.

Tickets are $17.50 and reservations can be made by calling 624-2463.

Razoumovsky Plus Larsen Piano Quartet performs

THE CHAMBER Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula presents the Razoumovsky Plus Larsen piano quartet. Their concert begins at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 30 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

Elaine Richey, violin; Sally Peck, viola; Robert Marsh, cello, and Eric Larsen, piano will play Mozart's Quartet in G Minor, K478; Frank Bridge's Fantasy Quartet; and Dvorak's Quartet in E-flat Major, Op. 87.

The members of the Razoumovsky Plus Larsen piano quartet have concertized together for more than 12 years, but it was not until 1986 that they formally organized as a piano quartet, succeeding the distinguished Razoumovsky String Quartet.

Between the performers in the quartet, principal chairs have been held in more than a dozen regional and major orchestras. Their collective background also includes performances in the major concert halls of the world and more than 100 recordings as soloists, chamber musicians and in orchestras.

The quartet is currently in residence at the North Carolina School of the Arts during the winter, and at the Saugatuck Chamber Music Festival during the summer. In the summer of 1990 the quartet made its official European debut tour performing in London, West Germany, France and Italy.

Elaine Richey, violin, graduated from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music and later served as a teacher at the Curtis Institute. She was a Naumberg Competition winner and has served as concertmaster of several symphonies. She has participated in the Marlboro, Sun Valley, Taos, Snowbird and Bowdoin Festivals and is a founding member of the Saugatuck Chamber Music Festival.

Sally Peck, viola, has performed chamber music with musicians such as Heifitz, Piatigorsky and the Paganini, Roth and Griller String Quartets. She was principal violist of the Utah Symphony. Summer residencies included the Music Academy of the West, Taos, Snowbird and currently the Saugatuck Chamber Music Festival and the Bowdoin Summer Music Festival.

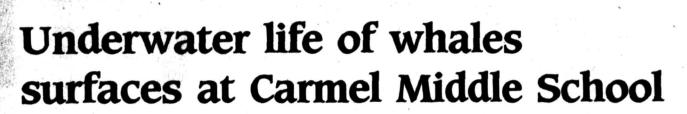

Robert Marsh, cello, was educated at the Hartt College of Music, later served as principal cellist of the Atlanta, Cincinnati, Dallas, and Oklahoma symphonies. Previously a performer with the Taos and Snowbird festivals, he currently spends his summers at the Bowdoin and Saugatuck Chamber music festivals.

Eric Larsen, piano, has been the recipient of major grants from the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation and Andrew Mellon Foundation allowing him to be heard in the major concert halls of Europe, Scandinavia, South America and the United States. Upon his graduation from the Manhattan School of Music, he was appointed to the faculty of the North Carolina School of the Arts. This season his schedule takes him throughout Russia, England, France, Germany, Italy, Alaska and the United States.

Membership in the Chamber Music Society with admission to all concerts is $30. Single tickets are $10 ($5 for those under 21) at the door before each concert. For information call 625-2212.

THE UNDERWATER life of whales will surface for audiences on Sunday, Dec. 2 when Kenneth Norris, regarded as the preeminent authority on cetaceans, and freediving whale photographer Flip Nicklin present a slide show and lecture to benefit the Carmel Middle School.

Sponsored by Highlands Inn in cooperation with the Carmel Middle School and P.T.A., the event is open to the public, with shows scheduled at 1 and 3:30 p.m. in the Surf Room of Highlands Inn, located four miles south of Carmel on Highway 1.

The subjects of myths, legends, fables and movies, whales have until recent years been nearly inaccessible to photographers and scientists. From this dearth of information has emerged the research of scientist, naturalist, teacher and conservationist Ken Norris and photographs of Flip Nicklin whose images are featured in the National Geographic book, With the Whales.

The recipient of "American Cetacean Society Man of the Year" award in 1976, Norris has led research resulting in the discovery of new species and knowledge of how dolphins swim, raise their young and organize their societies. Norris' were the first observations of living pygmy killer whales, a species once called the the rarest living mammal, while his "Big Bang Theory" indicated sperm whales and dolphins catch fish by use of intense sound that deafens their prey.

Founder of the University of California Natural Reserve System which now has 100,000 acres of wildlands protected for teaching and research, Norris is also founding president of the Society for Marine Mammalogy and is a member of the board of directors of the new Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute.

Eschewing tanks whose bubbles disturb whales, Nicklin free dives at depths up to 70 feet to capture on film whale behavior that has never before been photographed. Nicklin, who began diving at the age of 11, says he feels safer underwater than above. His fearless approach has resulted in extraordinary images published in With the Whales, a work that required him to travel for 18 months from the top of South America to the Arctic Ocean, logging 150,000 air miles along the way.

Tickets for an afternoon "With the Whales" are $7 adults and $3 children under 12 with a 20 percent discount for families of five or more. Sorry, no children under age 3 allowed.

Seating is limited and all tickets must be reserved in advance by telephoning Highlands Inn, 624-3801 ext. 251. Tickets will be held for payment at the door.

THE RAZOUMOVKSY Plus Larsen piano quartet is composed of, from left, Elaine Richey, violin; Sally Peck, viola; Eric Larsen, piano, and Robert Marsh, cello. They will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 30 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For details, call the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula, 625-2212.

John Sexton retrospective opens at Weston Gallery

CARMEL VALLEY photographer John Sexton will be paid tribute by the Weston Gallery. The exhibit is now open and continues through Jan. 1. A reception for Sexton is set 3 to 5 pm. Saturday, Dec. 15. The Weston Gallery is on Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

This exhibition will cover the period of time from his beginnings in fine art photography in 1973 through Sexton's most recent work to date. John Sexton is a master photographer, printer and instructor. Known for his finely printed black and white landscapes, as well as his detail in nature and man-made environment, his most prominent feature is the use of light.

Born in 1953, Sexton holds degrees in art and photography from Chapman College and Cypress College. He currently lives in Carmel Valley, but travels extensively for workshops and lectures. Sexton has perfected his technique over the years, and makes no mystery of his findings which he continually shares with others, much in the same way Ansel Adams shared his time in teaching.

He met Adams in a Yosemite Workshop in 1973, and it was then that Sexton decided upon his direction in photography, eventually becoming Adam's primary technical and photographic assistant from 1979 to 1982. He remained his technical consultant until Ansel's death in 1984.

and still serves as special projects consultant to the Ansel Adams Publishing Rights Trust. Other involvements include membership on the board of trustees of the Friends of Photography, codirector of the Owens Valley Photography Workshops program and consultant to Eastman Kodak Company.

Sexton has worked in the large format medium in photography and has produced numerous images of quiet elegance. A monograph of John Sexton's work, Quiet Light was published last year by Little, Brown and Company, and is a collection of over 15 years' of photographs. John Sexton has carried on the tradition of the black and white landscape in his own unique verbage and style. His photographs are about light and nature, a quality of light better seen than described.

Sexton has had exhibitions throughout the United States, Europe and Japan. He was a recipient of the Imogen Cunningham Award in 1981 and his photographs can be found in several permanent collections, exhibitions, and publications throughout the world. Some of the permanent collections include the Center for Creative Photography, Arizona; China Photographer's Association, Beijing, China; Eastman Kodak Company, New York; Polaroid Corporation, Massachusetts; Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, California; and the Yokohama City Museum, Japan.

Stan Stokes attends opening of his aviation art show

A COLLECTION of new paintings by aviation artist Stan Stokes will be featured at New Masters Gallery on Sixth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Stokes is the descendent of pioneers who came to California in covered wagons. His ancestors would be truly amazed by the aircraft paintings that Stan creates. Not only the subject matter but also the infinite detail and the threedimensional effects would astound the early California settlers. Stokes' original paintings and limited edition prints may be seen at New Masters Gallery in Carmel.

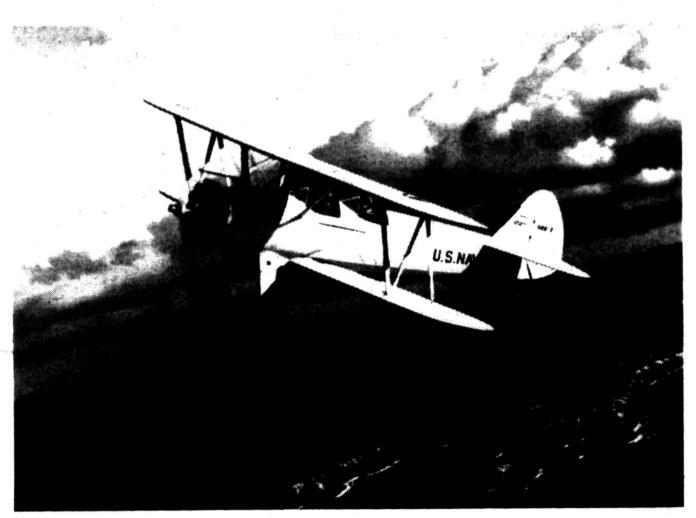

Stokes' rare ability to give the viewer the feeling that he or she is a part of each painting has contributed to his success. The award-winning artist's incredibly accurate depictions of vintage aircraft, which were flying before he was born, results from his hours researching the aircraft until he knows each nut and bolt. Because of his talents and knowledge, he has been commissioned to do scores of personalized paintings for both civilians and military personnel.

Stokes has had the occasion to work with many of our nation's famous pilots to create paintings of significant historical events. He worked with General Jimmy Doolfttle in creating a painting of the famous "Doolittle's Tokyo Raiders' and with Pappy Boyington on his Corsair and his P-40. More recently he has worked with Chuck Yeager, painting Yeager's X-1 (now in the Air Force Museum) and 21 of the original "Flying Tigers" and on limited edition prints. These paintings have been labors of love. "I've had the opportunity to meet my childhood heroes: Doolittle, Yeager, and Boyington."

Whether the painting is a specialized commission or for the viewing public, Stokes' love of aircraft is reflected in every piece that he creates. As Stan has frequently stated, "There's nothing I'd rather do than paint pictures of airplanes."

New Masters Gallery will be featuring a special exhibition of Stokes' newest collection of paintings. Stan will be present at the Gallery on Saturday, Nov. 24 during the 4 to 7 p.m. reception that marks the formal opening of his one-man show. New Masters Gallery is located on Sixth near San Carlos in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For further information call 625-1511.

Simple daily decency

THANKSGIVING: It's always a darned decent activity in April or July or the back half of November. Such an unlikely coalition (Texas oil refiners and New England patriarchs) drives George Bush toward warfare. As always, the nameless players get energy from greed and false superiority. I suspect that the President's widely publicized image problem may well be a manipulation of the media and public perception - he's one cold cookie whose political debts go back for decades. Congress freezes, creating through group timidity the vacuum which tells international cowboys that their values can prevail. Simple daily decency gets more and more difficult, but there's no other choice - unless we're prepared to become as shallow and shattered as the leader class.

I'm thankful that this column now enters its fourth year — not a bad run when the subject's the music created by black Americans who somehow survived slavery. And I'm thankful that local jazz figures insist on maintaining their commitment to this highly significant art form. (The power geeks will never forgive black people for outliving their usefulness as field hands and servants and factory workers. Too bad for the power geeks. When all's said and done, they always must live inside those hellish heads.)

Within the past few days, both flutist Kenny Stahl and singer Bill Allison have mentioned that they'll be unveiling new pro groups very shortly. Kenny's skill surely shall flourish within the announced Latin context. And Bill says excellent vocalist Peggy Nesbitt Brown will be part of the other venture. You'll recall that she served with Allison in the original Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble, which broke up when a key member moved away.

Manager Fred Mayo of Monterey Beach Hotel says owner Ted Richter wants his place to become the jazz hub of this peninsula. So far the house band - drummer Bill LePine's quartet including John Cortes on saxes - has demonstrated the right ingredients. Real courtesy anent customers. Artistry. Guest Players like trumpet adept Oscar Williams, pianist and composer Biff Smith, the witty Dennis Murphy (electric bass), keyboardist Dasher (David Kempton). When the dining room expansion has been achieved, there'sll be jazz for after-dinner dancing upstairs. All the more reason to celebrate and think thanks.

Meanwhile, Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra announces a Sunday Evening Christmas Dance Gala early next month (12/9) at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. That evening will feature the 20-piece band plus complimentary buffet put together by Steve and Marilyn Nergord of Mission Ranch Barn. Donation's $20 per. Proceeds will support MPJO's jazz outreach into public schools. Center Stage Ticketing. Or order ducats by phone: 649-5561.

MPIO Education Director Allison has been working with a Youth lazz Choir on Thursday afternoons in Oldemeyer Center. First performance will occur during the Christmas tree lighting at Seaside City Hall (12/5). Starts at 6:30 that evening.

Korean harpist Jung Kwak will be spotlighted Friday night (11/23) in Hidden Valley's wide-ranging concert series. It's $10 per -Center Stage Ticketing or at the door. Eight o'clock kick. Coming up (11/30) - brilliant jazz pianist Dave McKenna.

I'm thankful too that Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz keeps the faith week after week. On Monday night (11/26) - South African trumpet star Hugh Masekela. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $16.50 apiece; Center Stage Ticketing.

Finally, radiant jazz vocalist Julie Kelly called Johnny Adams of KRML Radio with the news that she has a new album and will send it along. The Los Angeles performer deserves wide attention. Strength, charming pipes, great ear for tunes. However madly those political cowboys test their manhood, the Julies keep working out questions of craft.

Monterey JAZZ Festival Education Committee's latest project (suggested by Carmel High music teacher Dick Robins) also inspires gratitude. The group hires pro jazz players; student musicians may jam with these and pick up tips right on the bandstand. Rather like the old days - except that the professionals offer measured encouragement rather than butt-kicking rites of passage

The last such gathering of this year used the San Carlos Room of Monterey Sheraton Hotel. Old hands there for the Sunday afternoon session earlier this month: tenorman Claude Gilroy, Bobby Phillips at the keyboard, Bob Blankenship (drums), Tom Bockhold (electric bass). Student: Carmel High's Adam Licsko (drums), Matti Fredreksson (electric bassist on exchange from Finland), Matt Sagen (keyboard), Zach Joseph (trumpet). Seaside High was represented by Matt Pruett (baritone sax) and Patrick Pruett on Committeeman Bill Jackson and MJF Education Coordinator Stella LePine greeted the small but deeply interested crowd. (How fine it was to see parents turn out. They needn't ever gush; presence says everything. I learned that Matt Segen's maternal grandmother was the first female jazz vibes player in the union's Oakland chapter.)

"We couldn't care less if you make mistakes," Bill told the teenagers upfront. "Don't be shy - take guidance from these men. Enjoy." The same message was repeated in chats between Blankenship and Adam, Claude and Matt Pruett. Young Licsko felt secure enough, for example, to wave off a solo and concentrate on laying down solid time with his ride cymbal.

Matt Sagen's one bright fellow. At a point, he was playing too many notes and got rather jammed up. Within seconds, he calmed down and went to a spare approach (boppish lyricism) that let the instrument and tune breathe. Self-correction. The sort of thing that happens when youngsters get trust and a safety net both at once

One off-peninsula music instructor (the program's countywide) had promised a busload of participants. At the last minute, this teacher called and cancelled. Clearly disappointed, Bill nevertheless said another session would happen after the first of the year.

Stella sent out many packets of charts so that students wouldn't walk in cold; not an inexpensive step. The notion's success depends upon communication to students by individual teachers about what the committee has made available - followed by logistical competence.

Youngsters need feedback from experienced musicians. I wish Matt Sagen had heard the casual comment from Bobby Phillips: "He has maturity - you can hear it in the first couple of notes." And Matti will have good stories to tell about the festival's caring when he returns home to Finland.

SIGHT BITES: The Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club slates flutist Ali Ryerson (11/28). Presumably she'll be working with her longtime partner - pianist and composer Charles Loos. Others: Foul Play (11/23-24), TV football (11/25-26), Jack and Ed Show (11/27), Don Pendergrass (11/29).

Kenny Stahl's booked into that Saturday evening jazz series produced by Tup Lohse at Giovanni's in Concord (11/24). Special guest: guitarist Mimi Fox.

Highly recommended night sounds - Ace Hill at Doubletree Lounge (Fridays and Saturdays), The Firehouse jam sessions fronted by bassist Norm Ross (Thursdays and Saturdays), Bill Allison and friends at Pablo's in The Barnyard (Wednesdays), Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra in Mission Ranch Barn (Mondays), Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito and pianist Weber Drummond at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge (Wednesdays through

Highlands Inn chef leads classes

HOME COOKS will learn professional chef techniques in a series of six hands-on cooking classes taught by Highlands Inn's Brian Whitmer

Beginning in December and continuing monthly until May, the 90-minute classes will emphasize seasonal menus from available local ingredients and be followed by a reception and luncheon from the day's class menu at the inn's Pacific's Edge Restaurant's Wine Room.

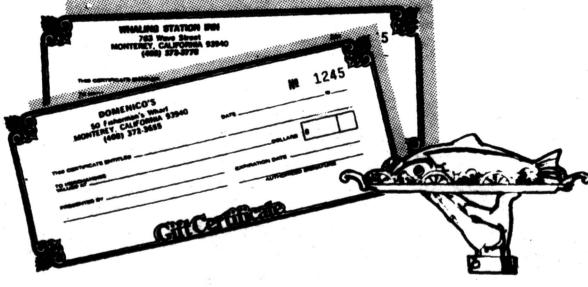

The series will be launched by Whitmer on Dec. 11 with "An Elegant New Year's Eve Dinner" and continue Jan. 22, 1991 with "A Winter Game Menu"; "The Bounty of Monterey Bay" on March 19; "Small Farms, a Monterey Treasure" on April 16: "The Fresh Offerings of Spring" on May 21; and conclude with "Cooking Light with Strong Flavors" on June 18.

"My goal in developing these classes," said Whitmer, "is to increase awareness of the simplicity of techniques in preparing great meals based on our local ingredients. Great meals are usually a lot easier to make than people think. Through this series I plan to demonstrate that and also have some fun, get interested cooks to participate and bring the sort of insight developed in professional kitchens to people cooking at home."

Whitmer began his career under Bradley Ogden as sous chef at the American Restaurant in Kansas City and later at Campton Place in San Francisco. As executive chef at Montrachet in New York City, Whitmer earned a three-star rating for the restaurant from Forbes Magazine and The New York Times Guide to Restaurants. Since coming to Highlands Inn, Whitmer has propelled the historic property's Pacific Edge into the national spotlight, earning it the accolade from Los Angeles Magazine as "the best restaurant on the California coast...from Mendocino to Coronado."

Classes are $85 each or all six for $450. Major credit cards are accepted. For more information or reservations, telephone Highlands Inn at 624-3801.

Carmel Music Society presents newly risen star

Soprano Dawn Upshaw, a newly risen star in the international vocal firmament, gave a song recital Sunday afternoon in the Sunset Theater as the second concert of the Carmel Music Society's current season.

Ms. Upshaw is obviously a musician of formidable musical intelligence, high professionalism and very well developed taste. Her performance was a model one. She knew exactly what she wanted to accomplish and did it in well-nigh perfect fashion. She has a lovely voice and she employed it artistically, knowingly and skillfully in her chosen material.

Ultimately, however, there was a lack to be discerned. It felt as if there was little that was uplifting or even cheerful to be heard. The music was directed toward the intellect in a rather narrow range, chronologically (spanning less than 75 years with one exception) and emotionally (dealing mainly with unrequited love and death, both secular and religious).

If one were in a large city where there is a great diversity of choice in song recitals, there would be room for a concert of such limited scope, but here Ms. Upshaw is the only singer we will hear and it would have been preferable to be offered a diet with a greater variety of musical calories.

"The Blessed Virgin's Expostulation" by Henry Purcell opened the afternoon. It describes a mother's fear that she had lost her son and it is a bleakly beautiful work. The emotions were vividly painted and Ms. Upshaw was a paragon of effortless projection throughout what was essentially a dramatic musical monologue and more of a recitative than a song.

The six songs of "Fiancailles pour rire" by Poulenc are settings of texts by the French Surrealist poet Louise Vilmorin and they are really nothing to laugh at. Still the mood changes were exquisitely shaped and the vocal tone was light and silvery. Irony, melancholy and other swiftly changing emotions were elegantly portrayed.

Moving on to the late romantic lieder of Hugo Wolf, the artist continued with the same beautiful vocalism and unhappy subject matter. Only the flirtatious "Die Sproke" and the charming "Fruhling ubers Jahr" were spirited and lively. One could easily appreciate the mastery of the material and the superior delivery of diction and tone.

A group of songs by Rachmaninoff were more highly colored, dramatically emotive, declarations of love and longing than the preceding Poulenc and Wolf selections. Ms. Upshaw gave her voice greater freedom, sounding fuller and more forward with her vibrato, thereby giving a hint of the operatic capabilities of her technique.

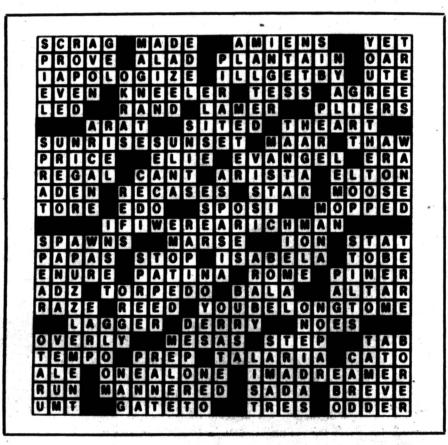

Finally, five of Samuel Barber's "Hermit Songs" were performed. They are settings of comments written by monks on the margins of manuscripts of the 8th to the 13th century. The songs are vignettes and sensitive settings of the texts, with little concern for melodic expression. There was always sensitivity and pure tone to be heard, but by this time, one's appreciation was muted by a sense of the limited scope of the content of the recital. When it is analyzed item by item, it is possible to see shades of variety, but the overall result was diminished.

Pianist Margo Garrett was the highly accomplished and aware accompanist. Three of the four major composers whose music was performed were pianists and they certainly must have been good ones because the accompaniments were often on a par with the voice parts and Ms. Garrett was excellent in support.

An unabashedly melodious encore, Mozart's "Das Veilchen" was absolutely delectable, underlining quite a musical contrast, but Ives' "Songs My Mother Taught Me" brought it all back again

Ernest Thompson's drama, On Golden Pond, is the first production of The Forest Theater Guild to be staged in Carmel's Cherry Hall.

Gregory de Silva directs On Golden Pond. The cast features Jim Jensen as Norman Thayer, Nancy M. Neuman as his daughter, Chelsea, and Ramona Davis as Ethel Thayer.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 7. Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are required. For tickets or further information, call 626-1681.

The Drunkard

The wages of drink are outlined in The Drunkard, when a totally respectable Edward Middleton becomes downtrodden after being tempted with drink. Of course, as in all good melodramas, all ends well with Edward back in the loving arms of his family. The title role is played by Kurt Menke.

California's First Theatre is the setting for The Drunkard. The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Seating is at 7:30 p.m. for the 8 p.m. curtain on Fridays and Saturdays.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $5.50 for seniors and teens and $4.50 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Top-flight artists represented at Carmel's New Masters Gallery

Carmel's New Masters Gallery first opened its doors in April 1974. Today the family-owned and operated gallery exhibits contemporary fine art by more than 60 artists from four continents.

Highlights of the gallery include the aviation art of Stan Stokes. Stokes' rare ability to give the viewer the feeling that he or she is part of each painting has contributed to his success. The award-winning artist's incredibly accurate depictions of vintage aircraft which were flying before he was born results from his hours researching aircraft from the tires up until he knows each nut and bolt.

Stokes' amazing artistry is not limited to paintings from the two world wars. He also creates magnificent paintings of modern aircraft and exciting automobiles. Stokes' commissions for both civilians and military personnel have run the gamut from World War I aircraft to spacecraft for NASA to dazzling red sports cars.

Stokes' one-man show opens on Nov. 26.

The gallery features work by talented local artists: the warm and wonderful works of watercolorist Will Bullas; the exquisite florals and landscapes by Shelley Anne Cost; the bold and daring oils by leading colorist Keith Lindberg; the detailed cowboy art of Missy Jenkins; Merry Kohn's charming primitives; Brenda Morrison's impressions of a gentle world of still-lifes and landscapes; and sculptures by Mark Ebbert and Dan Hemann.

The Fourth Annual Will Bullas show opens on Dec. 8. Please call for your invitational brochure, 625-1511.

RSVP — 'a look, not an age,' helps customers build personal style

AN ECLECTIC mix of styles is maintained at RSVP in Su Vecino Court in Carmel. What better way to make a fashion statement this season that is uniquely your own?

It is now nine months since Rita Seger's RSVP boutique opened and she reports she's very pleased with the store's progress.

The locals continue to support the shop and she and her manager, Jodi Hermans, are very pleased about this. The tourist upscale crowd has diminished to a trickle and she reiterates if upscale shops are to remain, they must have local support.

Remember, the concept of the store is new clothing with antique accessories. The fact that Mrs. Seger is a retired interior designer provides the shop with an eclectic mix of styles and looks. She maintains that RSVP is a "look, not an age."

The store is now full of unique holiday wear in velvets, lace, trimmed sweaters and lots of great-looking hats.

RSVP is located in Su Vecino Court on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth avenues in Carmel ("The court where Bud's Pub is," she says). Many of her customers are coming in for personal dressing. Call 624-8006,

Martino's Furnishings and Interiors resembles a fine museum

More than a store... it's like a museum in a designer setting. Martino's Furnishings and Interiors in Los Gatos is an unusual place.

The dramatically lighted display windows, showing treasures collected from around the world, tempt you to enter the shop which doesn't disappoint. Several room settings of living room, dining room and bedroom furniture are designed and accessorized completely ... from lighting to area rugs. Martino's staff of professional interior designers, members of ASID ... The American Society of Interior Designers ... showcase their talent and the store's vast collections of new and antique furniture, accessories and art objects which Martino's buyers find on their trips to Asia, Europe, Africa and South America.

OPULENT displays greet visitors to Martino's Furnishings and Interiors in Los Gatos, the place where interior designers find inspiration.

There are massive displays of antique blue and white porcelain from China, Celadon vases and bowls from Korea and bronze cranes and other figures from Thailand. Lacguered and carved Coromandel Screens are designed by California artist Katherine Myers and produced in China. These screens are featured throughout the store as focal points or backdrops for various rooms. A tall black lacquer screen is covered with a pride of cheetahs, another screen creates a water pond filled with swimming Koi and blooming waterlilies.

Antique Japanese tansu are displayed with elegant contempory upholstery. An old Chinese armoire is part of a family room setting ... perhaps to hold a television.

A large antique Florentine credenza and Italian oil painting of birds and tropical plants sit with a grand dining room table and tall back upholstered chairs by Baker Furniture.

Martino's has been in business for 45 years and has designed and furnished interiors throughout Northern California. The staff has created a warm and inviting environment for browsing and for shopping. It's easy to spend some time in this shop at leisure

Yager Heller Handcrafts offers fresh gift perspectives

The newly created Yager Heller Handcrafts gallery provides viewers with a fresh perspective on contemporary crafts.

Works by 39 artists are represented in the intimate downtown Carmel gallery, with creators hailing from California, Washington, Arizona, New Mexico and Florida.

Works are selected based on high quality and uniqueness of design.

Pieces displayed in the gallery are hand selected by Signe Yager and her 12-year-old daughter Kate Heller, who attends each buying trip.

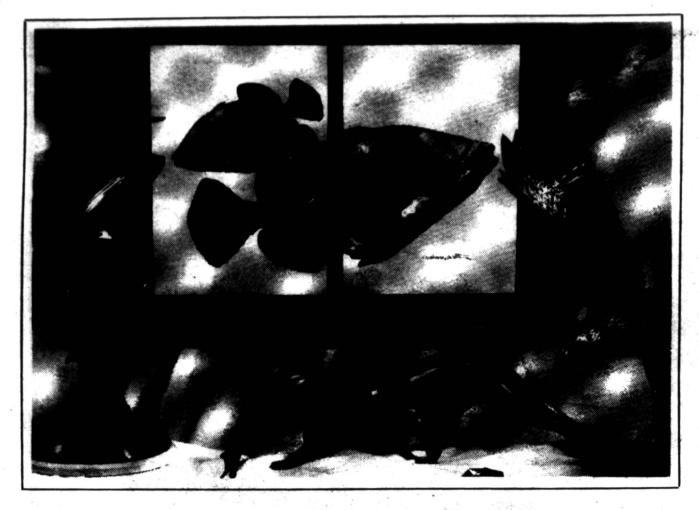

Yager Heller features the raku works of award-winning artist Michael Weinberg. This age-old technique uses a porous clay body which allows rapid temperature change in the firing. The result: a blackened ware with metallic lusters, which form a glaze.

The piece is then plunged into a container of leaves and sawdust. Wonderful, unanticipated crackles and colors then appear on the ware — no two pieces are ever alike.

Stop into Yager Heller Handcrafts for a glimpse at beauty. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. The store is located on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth. Phone 624-2621.

Pamper your investment with assistance from Jim's Detailing in Monterey

At Jim's Detailing they don't want to think of what they do as merely pampering your automobile, but protecting your investment.

The average person now keeps his car longer — seven to eight years, compared to the two to three years 10 or 15 years ago. With that in mind, it's imperative that the car is well cared for.

"When you keep it that long, when it comes time to trade it in or sell it, you just have to take care of the car, especially in this area close to the ocean," says owner Jim Kemp.

With that in mind Jim's Detailing offers everything the car owner could need when it comes to preserving that investment, whether it's something as simple, but necessary, as a wash and wax, or the whole ball of wax as it were — a complete detailing job.

A full-on detailing job starts out in one of Jim's four bays, where a complete handwash is conducted from stem to stern.

Next everything is hand cleaned, from vinyl and rubber hoses in the engine compartment to the trim on the dashboard. Then comes two polish applications to remove any oxidation and fine scratches, then a hand rub with polish that puts the oil back into the finish and gives the car a smooth, glistening sheen. That's all topped off with a hand-applied (everything here is done by hand), carnuba paste wax to seal and protect that shine.

There are at least two people and sometimes as many as five that take on an auto, armed with the tools of the trade: soft towels, tooth-brushes, Q-tips, and Popsicle sticks to get into those hard to reach nooks and crannies.

"Basically it looks like a new car again, "Kemp says proudly, and, as it turns out, quite accurately.

And Jim's Detailing not only does it all for you, they can help the do-it-yourselfer do it right — they offer a complete line of detailing supplies and accessories, from cleaning and polishing products to key chains and license plate holders.

Call for an appointment from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Jim's Detailing is located at 510 Fremont Blvd. in Monterey near Lake El Estero. Call them at 375-5733.

Camera World bases its reputation on solving photographic puzzles

Some 13 years ago, Monterey's Frank Lucido opened Camera World in the basement of what was then Holman's in Pacific Grove.

Though his leased space and his inventory were less than impressive, Frank working alone began building Camera World, establishing a reputation for friendly helpfulness.

Always regarding his customers' success and satisfaction first, still in the basement (now Ford's who prefer "lower level"), Frank's shop occupies much expanded space, products and services. Camera World has its own processing lab, repair department, extensive used selections and state-of-theart video transfer equipment. The shop has however, retained its special reputation for friendly personalized service. It always has time for, "Hey Frank, I got a problem!"

CAMERA WORLD owners Linda and Frank Lucido supply not only topquality photographic equipment but also advice on how to get the most out of it. They can answer all your picturetaking questions. (Wei Chang photo).
